In praise of “Hard Choices for Loving People”

Thank you very much for writing “Hard Choices”. In all the years I have practiced nursing, I felt I could not articulate my thoughts and emotions to the people I have tried to reach out and comfort as well as I do now after having read what you wrote.
Cecille Chan, RN

I read Hard Choices last night for the first time, and I feel compelled to write and tell you that I think it is the most compassionate, medically truthful, and useful treatment of this topic that I have read. I am currently a pastor, but prior to that I spent eleven years at the M.D. Anderson Cancer Center where I served as a chaplain, adjuvant ethicist, and Chair of the Clinical Ethics Committee.
Rev. Steve Thorney

I have been using your book for almost 5 years with great success. The reports of relief from guilt and remorse are great and without exception have helped each person/family I have given your book to.
Barbara Wright, Social Services

I sit here today reading “Hard Choices” as my mom lies dying slowly of cancer. I've read this book several times and think it is an excellent resource.
Jan Burg, RN
